Get vaccinated against HPV to protect yourself from cervical cancer!

There is a vaccine that protects you against the group of viruses that is the most common cause of cervical cancer, human papilloma-virus (HPV).

This year, the vaccine is being offered free of charge to all girls born between 1994 and 1999.

Taking the vaccine will protect you against cervical cancer and can help wipe out the disease.

Your arm may hurt a little afterwards, but the vaccine is safe, with over 270 million doses already administered around the world.

Visit cancerfonden.se/catchup to find out where you can get vaccinated.

Go and get vaccinated, and then tell your friends about it!
